FATHER CRONIN

Delivers Eloquent Address to the Catholic Knights of America.

Though the morning was cloudy and the weather threatening last Sunday, the sun shone forth bright and glorious in the afternoon when the Catholic Knights of America held their annual parade. Members of the various branches of that great insurance order began assembling at St. Mary's Hall at 1:30 o'clock, and despite the morning showers, which deterred many from taking part in the procession, all the local branches were well represented and a creditable showing was made. The start was delayed until 2:15, when Chief Marshal L. D. Bax gave the order that put the column in motion. Marshal Bax and his chief aide, Secretary Albert Martin, rode at the head of the line, followed by a platoon of mounted police, under Corporal Lee. Behind these were a number of carriages, in which rode officers of the Central Committee and older members of the order. Next came the band of music, preceding about 500 Knights on foot. The parade was an imposing one, and all along the line of march commendatory expressions were heard. The route was in to Jefferson and up to Fifth, then past the Cathedral and out to Broadway, down that thoroughfare to the Church of the Sacred Heart, over to Chestnut and up to Thirtieth street, and thence to St. Patrick's church, where they attended the solemn vespers celebrated by the Very Rev. Vicar General Cronin. Father Cronin delivered an able and eloquent address, taking for his subject "Catholic Knights and Charity." He dwelt at some length on the great works of charity performed by the Catholic Knights of America and the many widows and orphans who had been saved from dire distress through the membership in that body of their lost ones. Father Cronin has doubtless given the methods and workings of the Catholic Knights close study, and his words of praise and encouragement were heard with great pleasure by all who were present. The Central Committee met last night in regular monthly session, but the proceedings can not be published until next week.

The Visiting Committee reported Frank Ackerman, Louis Bosung, Henry Holkamp and Bartley Foley improving, and John Cribbins was placed on the sick list. Dave O'Connell made an interesting talk on parliamentary law, and John J. Sullivan, Jr. promised an essay for May 24 on "Life Insurance as a Profession." Messrs. David O'Connell and Emil Month were selected to represent and speak for Trinity Council at the joint meeting Monday night. A resolution to adjourn next Monday night at 8:30 o'clock and proceed in a body to the joint meeting at Satolli Hall was adopted.

SATOLLI DINNER

Given in Honor of Prof. Patrick O'Sullivan Last Monday.

Monday evening the members of Satolli Council, Y. M. I., gave a dinner at Fountain Perry Park in honor of Prof. Patrick O'Sullivan, who was formerly a member. Proud of Prof. O'Sullivan's magnificent achievements in Europe, among the master musicians of the world and under the eye of the exacting and merciless critics of Berlin and Paris, the members of Satolli Council conceived the idea of arranging a dinner as an expression of their appreciation of their former brother's work.

John F. Coady presided as toastmaster and made many happy sallies of wit as the evening passed. Prof. O'Sullivan, in response to a toast, spoke very entertainingly of his sojourn in Europe, and told of a number of comical and exciting experiences that he met with on his voyage and after he reached the mother country. One of the professor's most exciting experiences was encountered upon an attempt to obtain an audience with the Kaiser in the city of Berlin. Several plans that had suggested themselves to Mr. O'Sullivan had proved ineffectual, and as a last resort he hit upon the idea of representing himself as a newspaper reporter. This worked splendidly, and the musical genius, in the guise of an humble pincerner, secured admission into the august presence of the great Emperor without further ado.

But further along, when the splendid assemblage that had gathered to do honor to His Majesty was dispersing and the grand officials of the German Government and foreign potentates were being handed into their handsome equipages, Prof. O'Sullivan, in his role of reporter, nearly met his Waterloo. When he saw a place made for him in a carriage beside a grand gentleman in regimentals his American independence rebelled at further disguise, even to enjoy a drive on a splendid boulevard in so handsome a carriage and with such fine company. While the party was busying itself making room our Patrick bolted for the tall grass and was nearly run through by a guard in escaping into the crowd.

The members of Satolli gathered about the board at Tony Landenwicz's pretty park on the Ohio, where each and every one measured his ability to give utterance to mirth-provoking nothings, and the party succeeded very well. The evening was spent very pleasantly, the feast of reason and the flow of soul, and the many evidences of good cheer generally combining to make the occasion one of the most enjoyable Satolli has ever had.

The members present were Louis B. Baker, George C. Francis, Henry Lancaster, James Fahey, C. J. Obrecht, C. J. Breckel, William P. McDonough, John M. Ryan, Lawrence Musselman, P. J. Stuetzel, John J. Crotty, Harry T. Colgan, William J. O'Connor, Joseph Lennihan, Samuel J. Boldrick, William J. O'Sullivan, John Coady, Charles F. Lauer, Will Ross, Charles Weisenburger, Will McNally, Frank C. Clerget, Percy Abell, Pat O'Sullivan, James Zahner, Edward Pope, James Nalley, George Zarn and George Kilcourse.
